

JANET LEE, 29, singer & actress

After her exacting performance in M! The Opera, Janet is in between day jobs. Despite the demands of theatre and singing performances, the bug has set in firmly, so she's off whenever there is any audition, looking forward to her next stint. By nature, the petite and exuberant Janet is not very competitive or ambitious (she claims). She's happy doing the things that she loves most.

She swears to stay active and uses her 'talking' and organising skills to fundraise for charity. She is a member of Malaysian Nature Society. "I am also an incorrigible shopaholic," she laughs. She admits to her recent discovery of the art of lingerie: "Bras and panties were not a big deal to me until a couple of years ago." Then little Lee literally replaced her entire collection with new lacy, sexy stuff. "It began with a shift in shopping habits, and it came at about the same time when I started going for facials!"

"I'm not really a strapless bra person but, when I wear this, I hardly think of it as a strapless bra that needs care and concern. Except that I'm normally used to strapless bras that have a sponge at the bottom of the cup, in contrast to this one where it is at the bust line. It's a little bit different, that's all, and I find it a little empty at the bottom."

YVONNE LEE, 35, music teacher + author of The Sky Is Crazy, Tales from a Trolley Dolly

With two young children, and a music school as well as a marriage to maintain with her husband, Yvonne has barely any time to even bother with her choice of matching underwear. She feels she is conservative, quite unlike her sister who, Lee says, pushes her to experiment with clothes and make-up.

"As much as I envy her wardrobe and her lingerie collection, I just think I don't have the time or the luxury to go and shop to pick and choose, as my days sometimes seem a blur as I move from one chore to another," she admits. As long as a bra's comfortable and offers support, she's fine.

it for themselves

Two sisters test-drive Wacoal's new strapless bra – and spill the beans on their breasts!

"I think I have had a wrong concept about strapless bras for a long time, as I used to buy them one size smaller so that they would last longer, even after several washes," she chuckles. "I feel there is a lot of freedom with movement when I wear this, and that is comforting."

"Though at the end of a whole day, I did find a mark below my breasts. That is expected of underwire bras I guess," Yvonne concedes.

"But the fabric is great and I hardly had to adjust the bra throughout the day."
